COMMUNITY TRUST PROJECTS

LOCHGOILHEAD PARK AND GARDENS

Project overview

Work on Lochgoilhead Community Park and gardens has been affected by COVID-19 restrictions this year, with basic maintenance by household groups of volunteers really being all we could expect to achieve.

As part of the 'zoned' design which includes a food growing area, formal gardens, a wildlife pond, a stage for outdoor events, the development of a children's nature garden and the regeneration of the derelict curling rink are next on the agenda, along with a replacement of the of curling hut. As with all Community Trust projects, we are seeking external funding for these projects.

When restrictions permit, we are looking forward to hosting events and perhaps even a big party in the park.

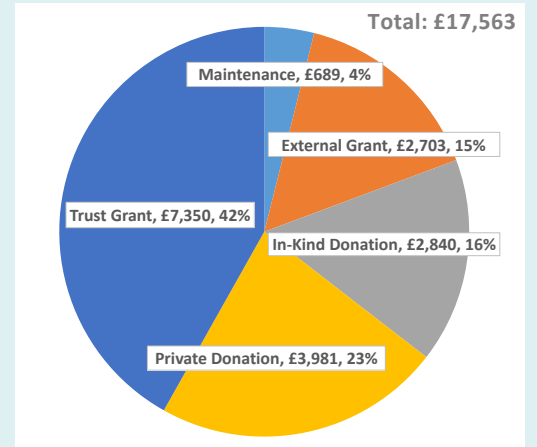

Project schedule

RIVER WALK

Project overview

The River Walk has continued to be a great asset to the community, providing a pleasant daily walk for so many, especially during lockdown restrictions.

Villagers and visitors have kindly donated time and money and nuts for the squirrels. Elaine Broadbent made some beautiful artwork for the path too.

Plans for Phase 2 had to be adjusted when European funding was withdrawn. Fortunately, in October we were successful with a £20,000 funding application to the National Park. Forestry & Land Scotland have also donated 90 tonnes of stone to the project. Andy Russell made a huge difference, making a path across a particularly boggy section and volunteering his time to carry out initial surface preparation.

Once built, the path will run all the way through to Drimsynibeg and beyond, including nature trails along the riverbank. Thanks go to all who have given so generously to this project.
